

2018 Lund-Okeover Spring Cruise Postmortem

The cruise to Lund and Okeover Inlet, May 25-27, was completed without significant issues, apparently not even a good Boat Hook Award possibility. Most crews assembled at Lund harbour on Friday, where Harbourmaster Darlene is always accommodating. A varied spread of delicious appetizers were enjoyed on the float.

1 Sunset from the Lund docks

Colin MacDonald did a masterful job of getting 18 boats moored in an orderly fashion and maximizing limited space on the Okeover floats.

4 The challenge: Docking 18 boats at Okeover

2 Refreshments on the Okeover docks

3 Modelling a new purchase at the Lund market

Refreshments on the dock were followed by dinner and entertainment at the Laughing Oyster Restaurant. The outstanding seafood buffet, followed by a decadent chocolate dessert, set out by Dave and staff at the restaurant, was enjoyed by 48 members and was a definite highlight of the cruise. Live entertainment was provided by the Sam Hurrie Band after dinner, an accomplished trio of musicians. Even some of us rhythmically challenged types were bouncing around on the dance floor.

Sunday the various crews dispersed to the winds. The wind and 6 Is it time to board yet?

rough water were a bit challenging on the homeward journey. Those with portholes in the forward hull will remember to close them in future.

Feedback indicates the cruise was enjoyed by all. Thanks to everyone who participated.

*Ted Trueman and Deirdre Bowers
Cruise Leaders*

5 Through the glass view from the Laughing Oyster restaurant

7The dock empties as we get ready to leave.